Against Their Will: North Carolina's Sterilization Program and the campaign for reparations [Kevin Begos, Danielle Deaver, John Railey, Scott Sexton, Paul Lombardo] on Amazon.com. FREE shipping on qualifying offers. This spring, for the first time in the nation's history, a state is poised to pay reparations to the victims of eugenics. I read mostly fiction but every once in a while a non-fiction book comes along that I can't resist, and Against their will is just such a one. I knew nothing of North Carolina's sterilization program as I started to read, and I want to tell myself these things could never happen now, but I'm not sure I can. Get this from a library! Against their will : North Carolina's sterilization program and the campaign for reparations. [Kevin Begos;] -- This award-winning series led to an apology from the North Carolina governor and the first legislation in the nation seeking to compensate victims of eugenics, or involuntary sterilization. For more ... The authors are investigative reporters, all of whom (except Begos) work for North Carolina's Winston-Salem Journal. In this book, they reveal a shocking and recent eugenics program in which for more than 40 years, North Carolina ran one of the nation's largest and most aggressive sterilization programs. It expanded after World War II, even as most other states pulled back in
