Codex Sinaiticus: The Story of the World's Oldest Bible, by D. C. Parker, (2010) will be of great interest to collectors who focus on the original biblical documents. It recounts in some detail the making and eventual discovery by Constantine Tischendorf (1844-1869) of a handwritten Greek manuscript of the most ancient complete New Testament (4th century). This book includes 22 color plates of Sinaiticus leaves and persons involved in its discovery. The famous biblical manuscript Codex Sinaiticus has seldom been out of the limelight since Constantine Tischendorf secured parts of it for scholarship towards the end of the nineteenth century.
