

Download Organizational Communication : Challenges Of Change, Diversity, And Continuity

This article presents a description regarding how both internal and external factors influence organizational change and its relative interdependence for helping an organization survive and grow. External forces are the environmental forces of change and are beyond the control of an organization, but majorly influence an organization's change ...The process of Transition Management involves the implementation of change through systematic planning, organizing and implementation of change to reach the desirable future state without affecting the continuity of business during the process of change. Crisis management is the process by which an organization deals with a disruptive and unexpected event that threatens to harm the organization or its stakeholders. The study of crisis management originated with large-scale industrial and environmental disasters in the 1980s. Course Categories. Behavioral Health. Facing Fear: Crisis Communication and Disaster Behavioral Health; Psychological First Aid: Building Resiliency for "Us" and "Them"